PREAMBLE

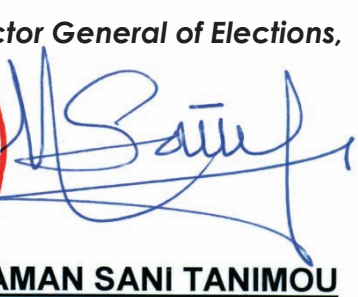

This general report on the conduct of the October 9, 2011 presidential election is drawn up in compliance with Section 22 (4) of Law No. 2006/011 of 29 December 2006 to set up and lay down the organisation and functioning of Elections Cameroon and its subsequent amendments, which provides that: "After every election, the Director General of Elections shall be responsible for centralising and keeping all election documents and materials. He shall draw up the final report on the conduct of the poll".

This report has as objective, on the one hand, to provide a rundown on the organisational process of this election as a whole, and on the other, to enable the reader appraise the activities carried out by ELECAM in general and the Directorate General of Elections in particular, in view of holding the poll both within the country and among the Diaspora.

We must point out that this is neither an activity report, nor a summary report of the different national and international observer mission reports on the said poll.

The first part of this report is essentially a narrative account of the conduct of the election, while the second part is devoted to annexes bearing statistical data derived from the poll.

We trust that this report shall enable the reader to appreciate the efforts made by ELECAM towards the organisation and effective conduct of this election, despite the difficulties encountered.

The Director General of Elections,

MOHAMAN SANI TANIMOU

INTRODUCTION

The October 9, 2011 presidential election was held within a context marked, on the one hand, by the accomplishment of the political will to modernise the Cameroonian electoral process progressively as well as the aspiration to consolidate the achievements of democratic maturity and, on the other, by the arrival of Elections Cameroon on the electoral scene of our country.

In fact, instituted by Law No. 2006/011 of 29 December 2006 to set up and lay down the organisation and functioning of Elections Cameroon (ELECAM), this new national institution is an independent body charged with the organisation, management and supervision of all election operations and referendums.

In this respect, the lawmaker vested ELECAM with exclusive rights over the organisation, management and supervision of political elections in Cameroon, a task which, until October 9, 2011, was the prerogative of the Ministry in charge of Territorial Administration (MINAT) and of the National Elections Observatory (NEO).

The enactment of this law satisfied the aspirations of a large segment of public opinion in Cameroon, which for several years then had been clamouring for the introduction of an independent body responsible for the organisation of elections in the country. With that in mind, the lawmaker granted absolute powers in the domain of organisation, management and supervision of elections to the new independent body.

Elections Cameroon is made up of an Electoral Board and a Directorate General of Elections.

The Electoral Board, whose number of members has risen from twelve (12) to eighteen (18), is expected, among other missions, to:

- effect scrutinies and controls as may be appropriate;
- scrutinise candidacies and publish the final list or lists of candidates contesting presidential, legislative, senatorial, regional and municipal elections;
- ensure the timely publication and notification of the list of members of polling stations to the appropriate persons outlined in the electoral law, notably representatives of lists of candidates or candidates;
- control the preparation of election material and election documents within the deadlines fixed by the law;
- examine claims and petitions regarding pre-election and election operations, subject to the jurisdiction of the Constitutional Council and appropriate courts or administrative services;
- order the correction of errors ascertained upon consideration of claims or petitions filed in respect of elections or referendums;
- hold consultations with the Administration, the judiciary, political parties and, eventually, the civil society for the purpose of managing the electoral process notably in view of the constitution of the joint electoral commissions provided for by the law.

For its part, the Directorate General of Elections, endowed with support structures and branches including 10 regional delegations, 58 divisional branches and 360 council branches, is responsible, under the control and supervision of the Electoral Board, for all election operations, notably:

- drawing up, managing, updating and keeping the national voters' register as well as election documents and materials;
- procuring and distributing election materials and documents;
- drawing up and publishing voters' lists;
- issuing and distributing voters' cards;
- organising or supervising the training of electoral personnel;
- preparing the annual draft budget of Elections Cameroon and draft election budgets;
- receiving and submitting to the Electoral Board candidacies for presidential, legislative, senatorial, regional and municipal elections;
- coordinating the work of observers accredited by the appropriate national authorities;
- organising polling stations and appointing officers to the said polling stations;
- reporting to the relevant authorities any threats to public order in the polling stations;
- coordinating all bodies responsible for election operations;
- transporting election reports and other documents from polling stations to the head office of Elections Cameroon.

It is in this context that Cameroon held a direct universal suffrage, on 9 October 2011, to elect the President of the Republic, the 4th election of its kind ever since the country returned to multi-party politics some twenty years ago.

What is more, this election is unlike preceding elections in many respects.

This, to begin with, is the first presidential election to witness the participation of Cameroonians settled or residing abroad, thanks to Law No. 2011/013 of 13 July 2011.

Moreover, this is the first ever election organised by Elections Cameroon (ELECAM), an independent body set up by Law No. 2006/011 of 29 December 2006 and which was only effectively put in place eighteen (18) months before the official holding of the election, while its predecessors in this domain all enjoyed a 3 to 4 years trial period before taking on the organisation of their first election.

Finally, this presidential election holds the record of the greatest number of registered voters and of candidates as compared to previous elections held since the return of Cameroon to multi-party politics.

It is worth mentioning that the legal framework governing the organisation of this presidential election was amended, on the one hand, to take into account the new body in charge of election organisation, to adjust certain deadlines relevant to management of the presidential election, notably that between convening the electorate and conduct of the poll, as well as time limit for the distribution of voters' cards and, on the other hand, to sanction the non-limitation of the number of presidential terms of office prescribed by the 2008 amendment of the Constitution.

In addition, the law to set up and lay down the organisation and functioning of Elections Cameroon witnessed some adjustments. In this respect and thanks to two amendments, joint electoral commissions were reintroduced into the electoral process and the role of public administrations in assisting ELECAM clarified.

This report, which draws its substance from the aforementioned missions of ELE-

CAM, revisits actions effectively carried out by the said election management institution towards the October 9, 2011 presidential election. As stated in Section 22 (4) of Law No. 2006/011 of 29 December 2006 to set up and lay down the organisation and functioning of Elections Cameroon (ELECAM) and its subsequent amendments, the Director General of Elections prepares the final report on the conduct of elections.

To make for easy reading, understanding and use, this report is tailored after the chronological order of events marking the different phases of the electoral process, namely pre-election, election and post-election phases.

It comprises five parts.

Part one, made up of two chapters, dwells on preparatory activities for the conduct of the poll within and without Cameroon. These activities particularly include the revision or drawing up of voters' registers, computerisation of the electoral roll, the first consultation forum between the Electoral Board and other stakeholders of the electoral process, the provision of security to structures, the management of pre-election disputes and the various preliminaries to the conduct of the election.

Part two, composed of two chapters, addresses the conduct of the election. It is centred on preliminaries to the election per se and its conduct both within and without the country. These chapters also address the second consultation forum between the Electoral Board and other stakeholders of the electoral process, the management of candidacies, as well as the different stages of preparations and polling operations.

Part three, comprising four chapters, focuses on the management of post-election disputes and the proclamation of results. Thus, activities relating to the counting, verification and centralisation of results within and without the country, the management of post-election disputes and final results are canvassed here.

Part four zooms in on funding of the poll, with special emphasis on the key expenditure items.

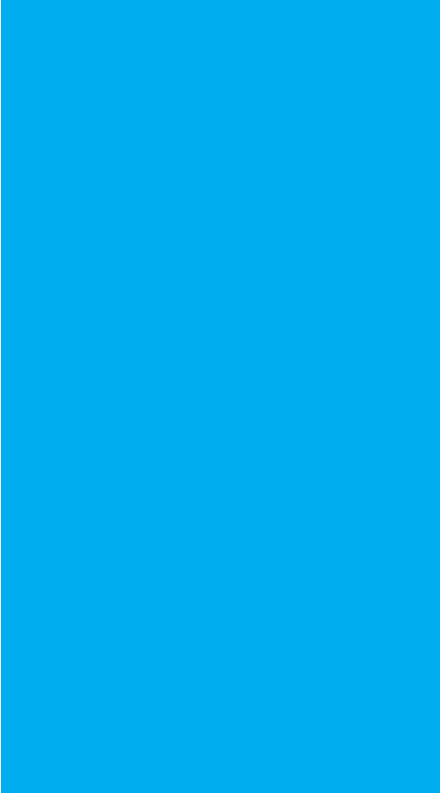

Part five revolves around two chapters, the first of which draws lessons from the poll while the second charts the way forward, presents the difficulties faced and formulates recommendations.

This report, as you would expect, is crowned by a conclusion. The conclusion is followed by an annexure comprising a wide range of data (statistical tables together with charts and other pertinent documents) whose inclusion in the body of the report would have hampered its fluency. That notwithstanding, the bulk of information contained therein retains all its importance as reference items within the framework of this particular election.

PART I

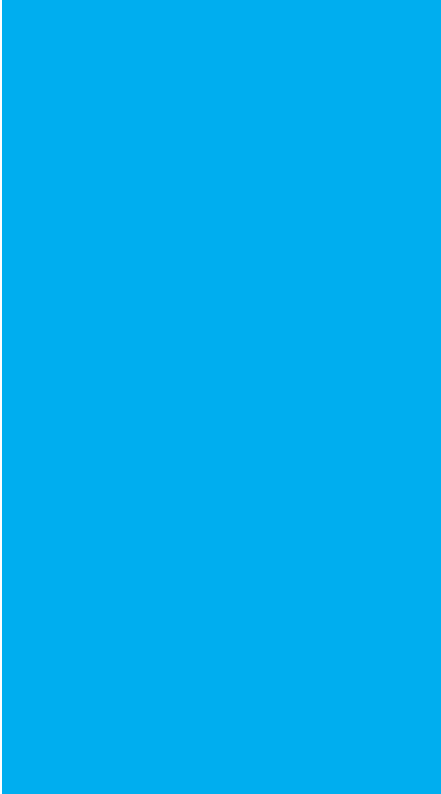

PREPARATIONS FOR THE ELECTION

Preparatory activities for the October 9, 2011 presidential election run from the 2nd-half of August 2010 to the convening of the electorate, on 30 August 2011. These activities, considered below, mostly involved the revision of voters' registers, computerisation of the upgraded electoral roll and the preparation of election logistics.

CHAPTER I:

WITHIN THE COUNTRY

Before actually setting in motion preparatory activities for the October 9, 2011 presidential election, the election materials and equipment previously under the keeping of MINATD were effectively transferred to the Directorate General of Elections on April 1, 2010.

The materials transferred included workstations, printers, computer tables with matching chairs, backups, mini flags for sticking on ballot boxes, lamps, stamp pads, tubes of black ink, date stamps, disposal bags, adhesive tapes, seals for ballot boxes, reels or reams of paper, transparent ballot boxes and packaging cartons.

This transfer exercise was also carried out step by step at the level of regions between local administrative authorities and officials of ELECAM branches.

Thereafter, it was deemed necessary to render all the structures of ELECAM effectively operational at both central and decentralised levels.

This was accomplished with the recruitment of staff and the appointment of officials at all levels.

As of October 31, 2011, ELECAM had employed 2 807 agents, all socio-professional categories taken together, 48% of whom were women (see detailed table provided under Annex I).

Rendering the institution operational also required the procurement and distribution to all ELECAM structures of office equipment and supplies essential to an effective accomplishment of the missions assigned to the said structures on the field.

Finally, all through the month of June 2010, ELECAM organised refresher courses and information-sharing seminars, at the level of regions, for the staff and officials of its branches, aimed at helping them to better assimilate the missions assigned to ELECAM as well as procedures relating to the management of election operations in keeping with the electoral law.

After successfully putting in place its operational structures, Elections Cameroon took on the management of the electoral process by launching the revision of voters' registers within the 2nd-half of August 2010. This body assumed management and supervision of the other phases of the process running up to the October 9, 2011 presidential election.

SECTION 1: REVISION OF VOTERS' REGISTERS

The commencement of the revision of voters' registers was preceded by the preparation and production of relevant election documents, the setting up of the commissions concerned, the sharing of pertinent information and sensitisation of citizens, the consideration of gender and disability.

A – Preparation and production of election documents on the revision of voters' registers

For the first time ever in the organisation of elections in our country, the Directorate General of Elections prepared, produced and distributed to council branches adapted election documents, authentic working tools for the revision of voters' registers, as prescribed by the law.

These documents comprised:

- voters' registers inherited from the 2007 electoral roll;
- voter registration receipt booklets to be issued for newly registered voters;
- voter registration records for newly registered voters;
- adjustment tables for the upgrade of existing voters' registers;
- tables for striking off the names of deceased persons or those who have lost their voting rights from the existing voters' registers.

B – Putting in place revision commissions

After requesting the competent local administrative authorities, mayors and legalised political parties active within the council concerned to designate their respective representatives in the abovementioned commissions, the Director General of Elections, in a series of decisions referenced in the table provided under Annex II of this report, determined the composition of 360 revision commissions across the national territory, from 20 August to 30 September 2010.

Because the representatives of certain mayors and political parties within these commissions were not designated in time, the Director General of Elections, exercising his prerogatives in the matter, instructed ELECAM Regional Delegates to initiate memos, where appropriate, allowing tardy representatives of political parties to join up with their respective commissions.

Despite this flexibility, the representation level of political parties within the said commissions remained below par, throughout this process. This is illustrated by the table provided under Annex III.

Besides, even the information drive vigorously carried out by the Directorate General of Elections failed to reverse this lack of enthusiasm.

C – Information and awareness drive

Elections Cameroon elaborated and implemented a communications strategy within the framework of the October 9, 2011 presidential election. This strategy aimed to rally voters towards an effective participation in the electoral process. The goal was also to influence the voting population to break with election apathy, observed in previous polls and to accomplish its civic duty, which is electing its rulers, with a clear conscience.

Both official and national languages were used to convey messages exhorting people of voting age to get registered.

The Directorate General of Elections adopted a far-reaching communications strategy, based on an explanatory and information drive. Adapted messages were put out in both the official languages and national languages through a host of channels including media like the radio, TV, printed press and the Internet.

Recourse was equally made to non-media mechanisms. In this respect, posters, gadgets, songs, brochures and flyers were produced and made available to the public. Photographic exhibitions, institutional documentary films as well as information drives were used to increase public awareness. An information desk was opened at the ELECAM head office to provide users with information at all times.

It should be noted that this communicational approach did not leave out the gender and disability factors.

D – Mainstreaming gender and people with disabilities

In terms of gender, Elections Cameroon geared its management of the pre-election period towards ensuring equal access for women and men at all the phases. Several strategies were drawn up and implemented in this light, notably:

- specification of gender (man/wo- man) in the different election documents used, notably the receipts issued to newly registered voters, the voter registration record, voters' registers and marked electoral rolls;
- provision for the handling of gener-related data by the software used by ELECAM;
- recourse to female mobile teams for the door-to-door registration of potential female voters, in certain localities of the Northern part of the country where tradition and customs still constitute an obstacle to the freedom of movement of women;
- consideration of gender in the composition of the various joint electoral commissions within and without the country;
- creation, within the aforementioned localities, of special polling stations, targeting female voters confronted to the socio-cultural barriers indicated earlier.

As concerns disability, out of the total number of voters registered on the voters' registers for the October 9, 2011 presidential election, 8 367 are people with disabilities.

On the face of it, this figure may seem trivial, but it breaks a record never attained before where this category of the electorate is concerned. As a matter of fact, people with disabilities have long been on the sidelines of the electoral process due to the enduring indifferent attitude adopted towards them in previous polls, though this category, actually, constitutes a distinct voting population, whose participation in the process requires specific arrangements.

ELECAM, in collaboration with some partners active in advocating and protecting the rights of people with disabilities, made every effort to push for the massive inclusion of this category of voters starting from the voter registration phase, whatever the nature of the disability.

Some of the actions undertaken include the production of posters and guides in braille, the realisation of radio and TV programmes including display windows for sign language interpretation, the posting of articles relating to disability on the Internet and the raising of awareness amongst opinion and political leaders.

In conjunction with these actions, the Directorate General of Elections actively worked for the drafting of a Code of Conduct that takes disability into account and benefited from the advocacy of partner international bodies and pro-disability organisations for the consideration of disability by candidates in their manifestoes.

In this respect, Elections Cameroon can claim to have raised participation by people with disabilities in the electoral process to a level never attained before in the history of elections in Cameroon, as illustrated by the voter registration trends.

E – Voter registration trends

Launched in the second half of the month of August 2010, the collection, verification and recording of data on new registrations, as well as the update of the existing voters' registers continued up to the time when the electorate was convened to the poll on 30 August 2011.

Registration on voters' registers was conducted through two complementary approaches: registration at fixed centres within council branches and registration by mobile teams set up within the competent revision commissions.

The consolidated figures of registrations carried out by ELECAM between August 2010 and August 2011 stand at 2 711 769 new voters. (See table provided under Annex IV).

In comparison and to better assess the aforementioned trend, it is worth noting that from 1997 to 2007, representing an interval of 10 years, at most 1 031 836 new voters were entered on voters' registers in Cameroon. (See table provided under Annex V).

To guarantee the transparency, dependability and credibility of the electoral roll being drawn up, ELECAM opted to computerise the election data collected.

SECTION 2: COMPUTERISATION OF THE ELECTORAL ROLL

Computerising the electoral roll for the October 9, 2011 presidential election is closely related to the modernisation of the Cameroonian electoral system and consolidation of democracy. This exercise aimed to, ultimately, put in place a modern system projecting pertinent data on elections.

Given that ELECAM did not inherit any computer network or software as part of the election material ceded by MINATD, the election institution had to avail itself of these facilities. ELECAM's determination to set up a computer network was, however, undermined by the rather tight and inadequate time schedules provided within the electoral process.

Providentially, as part of cooperation between the government and development partners, the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) offered an election management software to ELECAM, on May 3, 2010, designed by a firm of Cameroonian experts.

This software, known as "Computerised and Cartographic System for the Management of Elections", abbreviated as SIGCE, was initially well-secured and configured before being rolled out in all the 58 divisional election data input and processing centres set up by ELECAM.

Among the functional capacities of the said software, those put to use enabled ELECAM, inter alia, to take into account the management of new administrative units set up following the break-up of certain councils, polling stations existing in 2007, the splitting of the 2007 electoral roll into 360 council rolls, the integration of the split council rolls, the processing of multiple entries, the drawing up of revised and reliable voters' registers as well as the issuing of corresponding voters' cards and lists of polling stations.

Besides, the software allowed for the computing of new registrations carried out between August 2010 and August 2011, representing 2 711 769 voters, as well as those of old registrations dating back to 2007, whose number of voters fell from 5 067 836 to 4 813 353 after an initial clean-up. By the date the electorate was convened to the polls, the electoral roll stood at 7 525 122 voters. This figure was finally closed on the polling day at 7 497 279 voters after consideration in the electoral roll of justified corrections, ordered by the competent commissions.

At the operational level, it was necessary to set up an election data input and processing centre, at the preliminary stages, within each of the 58 (fifty-eight) ELECAM Divisional Branches, for data collected within councils by Council Branches and to ensure the smooth day-to-day functioning of these centres.

Thereafter, the computer services of the Regional Delegations took over the operation to centralise and merge the divisional rolls, process and screen the data, before transferring it to the Directorate General of Elections.

The Directorate General then proceeded, with the downstream processing of data received using adapted hardware found at its national data processing and production centre.

The mechanism put in place by Elections Cameroon confirmed its performance through a proper processing of nomination files, a managerial and rational planning of the election logistics, of the different electoral commissions as well as lists of polling stations.

A similar performance was recorded with the first consultation forum with stakeholders of the electoral process, organised by the Electoral Board.

SECTION 3: FIRST CONSULTATION BETWEEN THE ELECTORAL BOARD AND OTHER STAKEHOLDERS OF THE ELECTORAL PROCESS

As prescribed by the relevant legal provisions, the Electoral Board is responsible for the organisation of consultations with other stakeholders of the electoral process as part of management of the electoral process. The said structure held a consultation forum with these stakeholders on 29 September 2010 in Yaounde, bringing together the Administration, the Justice Department, political parties and civil society.

The goal of this meeting was to dispel any doubts and fears in view of a peaceful conduct of the electoral process and an optimal participation of all stakeholders.

Participants, in this meeting, made known their worries about several aspects involving the management of the electoral process and received more than enough explanations from the Electoral Board. The meeting ended with a call for each and everyone to play their full role in the conduct of this process.

Apart from the said consultations, the election institution also had the responsibility of providing security to its structures.

SECTION 4: SECURITY OF STRUCTURES

An appraisal of the security coverage of ELECAM branches as of 31 March 2011 revealed that a good number of Council and Divisional Branches were yet to be secured in each of the ten regions of the country. Yet, those already secured were not satisfactorily done. Some benefited from police protection, others from gendarmerie protection and some others even from the surveillance of security guards employed by ELECAM.

In light of the foregoing, the Director General of Elections, in two correspondences dated April 1, 2011, contacted the Delegate General for National Security and the Minister Delegate at the Presidency in charge of Defence, respectively, to seek security coverage for the branches not secured, while at the same time, presenting the two administrations with a summary list of the structures not yet secured.

These correspondences were followed by a reminder on 10 May 2011, which was heeded, as substantiated by Letter No. 01716/DGSN/SG/DSP/SDD of 16 June 2011.

Notwithstanding this favourable response, on 27 July 2011, through Letters No. 01538 and No. 01539/ELECAM/DGE/SPS, the Director General of Elections tendered a summary list of ELECAM branches already effectively secured to officials of the above-mentioned administrations, for their information.

Accordingly, as from August 2011, following instructions from the Secretary of State for Defence in charge of the Gendarmerie, this force reinforced the security arrangements put in place by the police at ELECAM Divisional and Council Branches.

Some Council Branches within the North-West, North and Adamawa regions however remained under the surveillance of security guards until the security arrangement was entirely taken over, nationwide, by soldiers of the Mobile Intervention Squad on October 5, 2011, in replacement of the gendarmerie and police.

On the other hand, security remained a primary concern during the dispatch of election materials within the pre-election period.

Finally, security forces offered protection to our partners of the printing press and to voter card distribution centres. But, all these arrangements had no bearing on the spate of pre-election disputes.

SECTION 5: MANAGEMENT OF PRE-ELECTION DISPUTES

Pre-election disputes refer to the various types of disputes recorded prior to the election proper, notably the four petitions brought by two political parties against the State of Cameroon/ELECAM, disputes resolved by divisional supervisory commissions and the litigation relating to candidacies.

With regard to the aforementioned petitions, three were filed by the Social Democratic Front (SDF) before the Supreme Court. The first, lodged on October 4, 2010, called for a halt to registration on voters' registers carried out by ELECAM pending signature by the Head of State of the decree to ascertain the effective putting in place of this institution. The second, introduced on the same day, stricto sensu, constituted the main petition calling for the annulment of actions undertaken by ELECAM. The third, tabled on 25 January 2011, corresponded to a formal request to the Constitutional Council to establish ELECAM's failure by virtue of Law No. 2006/011 of 29 December 2006 to set up and lay down the organisation and functioning of Elections Cameroon and its subsequent amendments.

The fourth, submitted by the Rassemblement Démocratique pour la Modernité du Cameroun (RDMC) of Mila Assouté before the Yaounde Court of First Instance, Administrative Centre, called on the Director General of Elections to carry out the registration of militants of the said party residing or settled abroad.

Ultimately, all these matters were thrown out due, inter alia, to the withdrawal of certain petitions and also to the good submissions made by the Directorate General of Elections before the judge.

As for disputes resolved by divisional supervisory commissions, the most significant cases involved three divisional commissions: those of Mezam and Bui in the North-West Region and that of the Noun in the West Region. The petitioners made several allegations: poor location of polling stations, presence of deceased persons on voters' registers, voters in possession of more than one voter's card, unlawful transfer of polling stations, fraudulent registrations. After examination, all petitions considered founded were heard in conformity with the pertinent legal provisions while those based on rumours were rejected.

As regards disputes affecting candidacies, thirty-one (31) candidacies out of the fifty-two (52) received were rejected by the Electoral Board of Elections Cameroon. Twenty (20) petitions were subsequently filed before the Supreme Court sitting in lieu of the Constitutional Council. At the end of the 13 hours hearing on Tuesday, 20 September 2011, two petitioners won their case, namely: Messrs EKANE Anicet of MANIDEM and SOH FONE Daniel of PSU. The final number of candidates retained for the presidential election therefore increased from 21 to 23.

With respect to the 18 other petitions, the Directorate General of Elections presented a brilliant submission, which convinced the highest court of the land to throw out most of them.

After the ruling was passed and the rejected candidates accepted the verdict of the Constitutional Council, it became necessary to finalize the deployment of election logistics.

SECTION 6: DEPLOYMENT OF ELECTION LOGISTICS

Prior to the packaging and dispatch of election materials to the various regions in general and polling stations in particular, the Directorate General of Elections, where appropriate, procured, constituted or ordered the manufacturing, inter alia, of the following materials:

- 50 computer-intensive servers;
- 58 four-wheel drive vehicles for Divisional Branches;
- 200 all road worthy motorbikes for Council Branches;
- 60 generators;
- polling booths;
- ballot boxes;
- computers;
- high-capacity printers;
- 32 000 electoral kits comprising:
 - lamps;
 - calculators;
 - indelible ink;
 - date stamps;
 - envelopes (large and small);
 - stamps;
 - counting sheets;
 - result sheets;
 - thumbtacks;
 - fabrics bearing ELECAM colours.

All in all, the same provisions made within Cameroon were applicable abroad.

CHAPTER II :

OUTSIDE THE COUNTRY

The October 9, 2011 presidential election marked the first ever opportunity for Cameroonians of the Diaspora to take part in a national poll as voters. This landmark opportunity was made possible by Law No. 2011/013 of 13 July 2011 relating to voting by Cameroonian citizens settled or residing abroad and its enabling Decree No. 2011/237 of 8 August 2011.

Elections Cameroon therefore had to take all measures necessary for the participation of this category of the electorate. It started by designating its representatives within diplomatic representations and consular posts, partners in the organisation of the election, in view of laying down the groundwork for this participation.

SECTION 1: DEPLOYMENT OF ELECAM ABROAD

As prescribed by the aforementioned instruments, the Directorate General of Elections dispatched twelve (12) teams, to earmarked Cameroonian diplomatic representations and consular posts, charged with setting up voter registration centres, training the personnel of these centres and seeing to the effective commencement of registration operations.

In this respect, the said teams criss-crossed Europe, the Americas, Asia and Africa from August 5 to 18, 2011, bringing back the statistics of the maiden registrations carried out abroad.

It should be recalled that the personnel charged with the registration of voters abroad comprised an ELECAM focal point and support staff as well as all staff members of the diplomatic services concerned.

In parallel to this deployment of teams of the Directorate General of Elections, members of the Electoral Board, on their part, made trips to twenty-five (25) countries across the same continents in view of organising consultations prior to setting up the different electoral commissions as prescribed by Law No. 2011/013 of 13 July 2011 relating to voting by Cameroonian citizens settled or residing abroad.

Thus, at the behest of both the members of the Electoral Board and heads of the forty (40) diplomatic representations and consular posts earmarked to host voting by the Diaspora, meetings were organised with a view to designating members of the commissions specified.

At the end of these consultations, concrete suggestions on the composition of the said electoral commissions within the countries visited were transmitted for their composition to be ascertained by the Director General of Elections.

It is worth pointing out that, due to time constraints, these commissions could not fully accomplish their mission.

Meanwhile, ELECAM had to address the issue of drawing up voters' registers.

SECTION 2: VOTER REGISTRATION AND DRAWING UP OF VOTERS' REGISTERS

Considered eligible for the first time to take part in a national poll while in their host country, following the adoption and promulgation of Law No. 2011/013 of 13 July 2011 above, Cameroonians living abroad were not concerned by the ongoing revision of voters' registers within the country. Elections Cameroon just had to draw up their first ever electoral roll.

Furthermore, unlike within the national territory where registration was subject to the presentation of the National Identity Card or its receipt thereof, the consular card constituted the statutory document required for registration of voters of the Diaspora.

What is more, the electoral constituency covered by each diplomatic representation or consular post concerned was geographically more extensive than those assigned respectively to each ELEC-CAM Council branch in the country.

The election data collected abroad were transmitted without delay to the Directorate General of Elections using the most modern and fastest communication medium and with the assistance of the Ministry of External Relations, for inclusion into the computerised national roll.

SECTION 3: COMPUTERISATION OF THE ELECTORAL ROLL

With the streaming in of election data on the Cameroonian Diaspora, whose management was not provided for in the SIGCE software, computerising the Diaspora roll turned out to be intricate.

In response to this problem, the Directorate General of Elections created a specific databank and developed an adapted application dubbed "Diaspora Software", which enabled it to process all operations relating to the registration, creation and management of polling stations as well as the printing of voters' registers and cards, including polling station electoral rolls, meant for the election outside Cameroon.

Having achieved the computerisation of the Diaspora roll, attention then turned to material preparations for voting abroad.

SECTION 4: DEPLOYMENT OF ELECTION MATERIALS

Although the ordering and reception of light election materials, destined for voting by the Diaspora, was exclusively performed by the Directorate General of Elections, the packaging and dispatch of the said materials were, for their part, done in collaboration with the Ministry of External Relations, charged, in particular, with its bundling according to diplomatic procedure.

Heavy material, like polling booths and ballot boxes, were procured on the spot by diplomatic representation partners with ELEC-CAM funds.

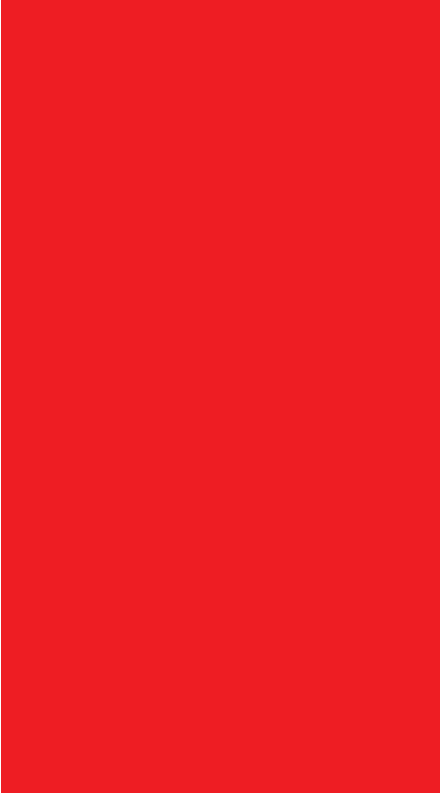

And that is how this maiden phase of the electoral process ended, paving the way for activities directly connected to the conduct of the poll.

PART II

PRELIMINARIES AND CONDUCT OF THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

This second part gives a rundown of activities carried out right after the electorate was convened to the polls. These include preliminaries to the conduct of the election and polling operations.

CHAPTER I:

PRELIMINARIES AND CONDUCT OF THE ELECTION WITHIN THE COUNTRY

Preliminaries to the election consisted mostly in managing candidacies for the presidential election, identifying and locating polling stations, producing and publishing voters' registers for consultation, issuing and distributing voter cards as well as printing and dispatching ballot papers and campaign ballots. Then ensued, on the Election Day, polling operations proper culminating in vote counting and transmission of the results obtained at each polling station to the competent commissions.

The accomplishment of all these activities relating to the election phase is narrated under the following sections:

- second consultation between the Electoral Board and other stakeholders of the electoral process;
- management of candidacies;
- preliminaries to the conduct of the election;
- organisation and management of polling operations.

SECTION 1: SECOND CONSULTATION BETWEEN THE ELECTORAL BOARD AND OTHER STAKEHOLDERS OF THE ELECTORAL PROCESS

This second consultation, held on 20 September 2011, in Yaounde, led to the adoption of a Code of Conduct to guide the behaviour of all stakeholders of the electoral process. Signatories of the said document formally pledged to strictly abide by it. The groundwork was therefore laid for a peaceful management of candidacies. The list of these signatories is presented under Annex VI.

SECTION 2: MANAGEMENT OF CANDIDACIES

Candidacies for the presidential election were handled by three main structures: the Directorate General of Elections, the Electoral Board and the Supreme Court sitting as the Constitutional Council. It was carried out in several stages.

A - Receipt and transmission of nomination files to the Electoral Board

In keeping with the provisions of Article 55 (2) of Law No. 92/010 of 17 September 1992 to lay down conditions governing the vacancy of and election to the Presidency of the Republic, amended and supplemented by Law No. 97/020 of 9 September 1997 and Law No. 2011/002 of 6 May 2011, nomination papers were submitted either at the Directorate General of Elections or at the Regional Delegations of Elections Cameroon.

Prior to the expiry of the fifteen (15) days deadline, starting from the date of convening of the electorate, fifty-two (52) nomination papers in all were received and registered by the Directorate General of Elections.

After issuing a provisional receipt to candidates, as prescribed by Article 55 (5) of the above cited law, the Directorate General of Elections transmitted each nomination paper to the Electoral Board for scrutiny. The list relating thereto is provided under Annex VII.

B - Scrutiny of files and publication of the list of candidates

After scrutinising the fifty-two (52) nomination files, the Electoral Board, through Decision No. 003/ELECAM/CE of 9 September 2011, published a list of twenty-one (21) candidates whose nomination had been retained for the October 9, 2011 presidential election. Candidates not retained were notified of the rejection by the Director General of Elections, as prescribed by law.

The rejection notifications of thirty-one (31) nomination files gave rise to twenty (20) petitions, addressed to the Supreme Court, by the candidates concerned, calling for an annulment of the decision of the Electoral Board. The list of these petitions is provided under Annex VIII of this report.

Subsequent to an examination of the different petitions, the Supreme Court, sitting in lieu of the Constitutional Council, rehabilitated two (2) candidates, raising the total number of candidates admitted to take part in the presidential election to twenty-three (23). (See Annex IX)

With regard to the other eighteen (18) petitions, in its statement of defence, the Directorate General of Elections put forward arguments that convinced the Supreme Court to uphold the decision on rejection of candidatures initially taken by the Electoral Board.

With that over, ELECAM got down to activities preceding the effective conduct of the poll.

SECTION 3: PRELIMINARIES TO THE ELECTION

Preliminaries to the election consisted notably in determining the number and location of polling stations, making voters' cards as well as information on voters' registers and polling stations available to electors.

Activities also involved launching the printing and distribution of ballot papers and campaign ballots as well as polling station electoral rolls, election return reports and vote counting sheets.

Finally, local polling commissions were put in place, observer activities coordinated, election communication and awareness campaigns ensured, a gender approach adopted and people with disabilities taken into account, not leaving out the security aspect.

A – Management of voters' registers

The closing of voter registration followed the convocation of the electorate on 30 August 2011. Election data culled in the run-up to the said closing were compiled and processed in view of drawing up council registers of voters. These voters' registers were then put at the disposal of voters for consultation.

Meanwhile, in a release made public on 22 September 2011, the Directorate General of Elections urged voters to go to the Council Branches of their constituencies and confirm that they had been effectively included on these registers.

Moreover, the Directorate General of Elections carefully specified on the said registers all relevant information relating to the polling station of each registered voter.

In spite of these efforts, management of the electoral roll of Cameroonians residing within the country proved painstaking as the election data received from MINATD were not quite accurate. In this respect, a number of multiple entries were identified necessitating the electoral roll to be cleaned up. But, for lack of time, the exercise was not properly concluded.

These multiple entries had as major causes: the reversal of the order of certain names while maintaining the other information fields unchanged; the repetition of the same name while altering other information slots in each supposedly new registration; the presence of near perfect homonyms and the existence of blank or partially filled information slots in certain registrations.

B - Issuing and distribution of voters' cards

In connection to the issuing of voters' cards, the voters' registers produced under the conditions mentioned above, as one might expect, served in issuing the said cards. In the face of the multiple entries uncovered, but not expunged, the different branches of Elections Cameroon were instructed to withdraw those voters' cards issued in several copies for the same voter.

The real challenge in the handling of voters' cards involved their printing and distribution because, for the first time in the history of Cameroon, the number of registered voters surpassed the seven million mark.

As concerns the distribution of the said cards, Elections Cameroon had to rely on barely two thousand or more agents employed in its Council Branches, in order to accomplish this colossal task, with these agents, in the best of circumstances, hoping for hypothetical assistance from the commissions charged with controlling the issuing and distribution of voter cards, deserted by the representatives of political parties. Thanks to some fine display of ingenuity, at the forefront of which were mobile distribution teams, 81% of cards were finally distributed. (See tables provided under Annex X).

It should be observed here that the problem of distributing voters' cards was more serious in urban areas where the population is dense, heterogeneous and inclined to wait and see.

Cards not withdrawn by Election Day were, as stipulated by law, put at the disposal of their holders at polling stations where the concerned were expected to cast their vote.

However, worries about voters' cards did not turn the attention of Elections Cameroon from the need to tackle the matter of ballot papers and campaign ballots.

C – Printing and dispatch of ballot and campaign papers

The production of ballot papers and campaign ballots constituted another major challenge met by Elections Cameroon in an election involving twenty-three (23) candidates and some seven and a half million registered voters.

As a prelude to this operation, the Director General of Elections signed Decision No. 0415/ELECAM/DGE of 10 September 2011 to define the format of the ballot paper and campaign ballot as well as that of election campaign posters.

In a spill-over effect, the plethora of candidacies mentioned above was felt at the level of printing presses, where almost all those reputed reliable in Yaounde were drawn upon, to produce 500 000 campaign ballots and 10 000 000 ballot papers per candidate, representing a total of 241 500 000 printed ballots.

In the same vein, 10 000 000 small envelopes, 100 000 large envelopes, 750 000 result sheets and 60 000 counting sheets were produced and put at the disposal of polling stations and other structures charged with managing election operations.

This bulky printing of ballot papers corresponded to the relatively high number of candidates and polling stations.

D – Organisation and management of polling stations

In order to determine the number of polling stations to be put in place, the Directorate General of Elections took into account both the number of registered voters within each council, village or neighbourhood and provisions of the electoral law setting the number of voters assigned to each polling station at a maximum of 500 registered voters.

Consequently, following an equitable distribution of registered voters within the country, the number of corresponding polling stations stood at 24 579. This is testified by the series of decisions taken by the Director General of Elections on 16 September 2011, whose references are provided under Annex XI and which fix the list of polling stations within each council while specifying the territorial jurisdiction of each polling station, consisting neighbourhoods and villages.

Furthermore, the Director General of Elections, on September 15, 2011 signed Decision No. 0418/ELECAM/DGE of 15 September 2011 to lay down the organisation of polling stations within the country. This decision, among others, defined the composition of election materials indispensable to the functioning of a polling station, polling formalities and vote counting procedures. (See copy of the said decision provided under Annex XII).

As for the location of these polling stations, all measures were taken to ensure that they were lodged within premises accessible to the public. Those that were previously situated within private homes or some palaces were relocated to schools and other public places. Moreover, a few polling stations were specially prepared to handle voters with disabilities. (See the list of these polling stations provided under Annex XIII).

Measures were also taken to furnish all polling stations with enough election materials.

Having fine-tuned the management of polling stations, the Directorate General of Elections strove to put in place local polling commissions.

E - Putting in place local polling commissions

This was concretised on 30 September 2011 by a series of decisions taken by the Director General of Elections to determine their composition. References of the said decisions are found in the table provided under Annex XIV.

Once these decisions were made public, training workshops were organised nationwide for members of the commissions concerned to enable them fully assume their responsibilities.

Here again, the participation of representatives of some candidates in polling stations was quite low (see corresponding table provided under Annex XV).

Fortunately, this was not the case with election observers, whose activities were coordinated by the Director General of Elections.

F - Coordination of the work of observers

The Directorate General of Elections was responsible for the coordination of the activities of accredited election observers. In this light, a briefing was organised for the latter on October 7, 2011.

The goal of this encounter was to share ideas with the observers present on a variety of issues, ranging from the location of polling stations to election observation procedures, through security guidelines graciously imparted by a representative of the Delegate General for National Security, designated for that purpose.

The Directorate General of Elections equally provided observers with an Election Observer's Guide, especially drawn up to ease their election observation mission.

At the end of their observation of the 9 October 2011 election, some of these observers, whose list is provided under Annex XVI, forwarded their reports to the Directorate General of Elections who took them into account in the elaboration of this report.

Other activities also benefited from this form of communication.

G - Communication and sensitisation within the election period

In terms of election communication and awareness, the electoral phase was, above all, marked by the conception and broadcast of messages urging voters to withdraw their voter cards from the competent ELECAM Council Branch offices and commissions. This was followed by messages on polling procedures.

Besides, a hotline was set up at the head office of the Institution, running from the opening to the aftermath of the poll, to stay tuned to the various preoccupations of voters about management of the poll. 11 343 calls were thus processed in 12 days, to the great satisfaction of users.

It must, finally, be underscored that all messages on the election phase enhanced the streamlining of gender and people with disabilities.

H – Mainstreaming gender and people with disabilities

In terms of solid pro-gender actions, except for the aforementioned target communication, the election period was in essence characterised at ELECAM by the preferential treatment given to pregnant women, elderly persons and voters with disabilities at polling stations.

Besides, some concrete actions were carried out within the election period in favour of persons with disabilities like the erection of twelve (12) pilot polling stations. These pilot polling stations were outfitted with access ramps, fitting polling booths and ballot boxes laid out at floor level enabling persons with disabilities to exercise their right to vote with ease and dignity. Nine (09) localities of the country, spread over six (06) regions, were identified. The table provided under Annex XIII mentioned earlier illustrates this.

Moreover, guidelines given by ELECAM management on how polling agents should facilitate the voting exercise for persons with disabilities were strictly followed.

This brings to focus the security of the poll.

I - Security of the election

In the election phase, while the military forces played a very active role in providing security to ELECAM branches, the Directorate General of Elections was preoccupied by the issue of securing polling stations.

A similar concern prevailed with regard to the diplomatic representations and consular posts within which voting by the Diaspora was organised.

As a result, on polling day, security forces provided discrete but effective protection to polling stations, thereby enabling ELECAM to accomplish, in absolute serenity, the critical part of its mission: the management of polling operations.

SECTION 4: POLLING OPERATIONS

On 9 October 2011, the day of the poll, the mission devolved on the Directorate General of Elections was, so to speak, at its apex: the organisation, management and supervision of polling operations. The major challenge consisted in ensuring the smooth running of all the polling stations set up across the national territory for this election. The subsequent paragraphs address those aspects relating to conduct of the polling operations and vote counting, notably:

- respect of opening and closing hours;
- conduct of polling operations;
- vote counting;
- transmission of results.

A – Opening and closing of the poll

The opening hour, 8 a.m., was generally respected, despite a few delays observed here and there, particularly in the cities of Douala and Yaounde. These delays could be explained by two major factors: last minute withdrawals in the ranks of citizens co-opted and trained to chair local polling commissions and the absence of representatives of certain candidates/political parties at the opening of the poll.

As to compliance with the closing hour of the poll, no major violation was reported. Whenever it was deemed necessary, the polling station remained open beyond 6 p.m. to allow voters already in queues to exercise their right to vote.

B – Conduct of polling operations

No significant abnormality was reported during the conduct of polling operations.

Though it was necessary, now and again, to make up deficits in the stock of ballot papers of certain candidates within a few polling stations, after examination, it was found out that allowing the voter to single-handedly pick up ballot papers meant for the various candidates seemed to have provoked these deficits. As a matter of fact, rather than select one ballot paper for each candidate, some voters, intentionally or unintentionally, collected more.

No case of violence was reported, during the presidential election of 9 October 2011, inside any polling station, even during the vote count.

C – Vote counting

In all polling stations, votes were counted on the spot, upon the closing of the poll and the results obtained in each polling station were made public, as prescribed by the law, before result sheets were completed.

The said forms were duly completed with respect to the law. Meanwhile, a few blunders, noted here and there, were promptly redressed by the divisional supervisory commissions. These flaws reveal training shortfalls that should be set right in future capacity building forums.

Result sheets duly completed and signed by members of local polling commissions were distributed as prescribed by law. Besides, no loss of these documents was reported within and without the country.

CHAPTER II:

PRELIMINARIES AND CONDUCT OF THE ELECTION OUTSIDE THE COUNTRY

Relatively brief but intensive preparatory activities were carried out abroad by ELECAM focal points and their collaborators, in accordance with Decree No. 2011/237 of 8 August 2011 to lay down conditions for Implementing Law No. 2011/013 of 13 July 2011 relating to voting by Cameroonian citizens settled or residing abroad, which preceded preliminaries to the election and polling operations.

SECTION 1: PRELIMINARIES TO THE ELECTION OUTSIDE THE COUNTRY

Preliminary activities towards the conduct of the election abroad involved determining the number and location of polling stations, posting up voters' registers, and preparation of election material as well as voters' cards.

As concerns polling stations, 77 were created, on the recommendation of the heads of diplomatic representations and consular posts involved for the 24 372 registered voters of the Diaspora. This creation was enforced, on the one hand, by Decision No. 0429/ELECAM/DGE of 16 September 2011 to lay down the organisation of polling stations abroad and, on the other, by Decision No. 0435/ELECAM/DGE of 25 September 2011 to establish the list of polling stations within diplomatic representations and consular posts (see copies of these texts attached to annex XVII).

Polling station electoral rolls were later made available to the diplomatic missions or consular posts concerned. Measures were equally taken to furnish all polling stations of the Diaspora with the mandatory election materials notably: ballot boxes, polling booths, calculators, indelible ink, date stamps, small and large envelopes, stamp pads, counting sheets, result sheets, etc

The distribution of voters' cards was duly carried out, recording a success rate highly superior to that obtained on the national territory.

Having concluded this phase, the management of the electoral process abroad inexorably advanced towards its apex.

SECTION 2: CONDUCT OF THE ELECTION OUTSIDE THE COUNTRY

Decision No. 0436/ELECAM/DGE of 25 September 2011 to determine the composition of local polling commissions paved the way for the effective conduct of the election abroad. It should be observed that, pursuant to the provisions of Article 17 (1) of Decree No. 2011/237 of 8 August 2011 to lay down conditions for Implementing Law No. 2011/013 of 13 July 2011 relating to voting by Cameroonian citizens settled or residing abroad, these commissions were made up of four (4) persons, namely, a chairperson, a secretary and two members.

The said commissions had the responsibility of managing all pertinent operations abroad including polling. Thus, with the exception of the management of candidates, the production of voters' registers, the issuing of voters' cards, the production of ballot papers and campaign ballots, virtually all other preparatory activities towards the election or relating to polling proper were carried out under the responsibility of the heads of Cameroon diplomatic representations or missions concerned.

That is why the 24 372 registered voters of the Diaspora, who participated in the poll were able to exercise their voting right, in an atmosphere of peace, discipline and serenity, in the 77 polling stations set up for voters settled or residing abroad. No significant incident was reported by the ELECAM focal points. Moreover, the prescribed opening and closing hours for polling stations were respected.

Election result sheets were channelled via the Ministry of External Relations, directly to the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes, competent to conduct, at the last resort, the counting, verification and centralisation of results of the 2011 presidential election.

PART III

MANAGEMENT OF DISPUTES AND PROCLAMATION OF RESULTS

Operations carried out within this phase of the electoral process centred essentially on the counting, verification and centralisation of the results obtained in polling stations, the management of post-election disputes and the proclamation of final results of the poll.

CHAPTER I:

COUNTING, VERIFICATION AND CENTRALISATION OF RESULTS WITHIN THE COUNTRY

These election operations were conducted by the different electoral commissions, notably local polling commissions, divisional supervisory commissions and the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes.

Local polling commissions ensured the organisation and monitoring of polling operations as well as the counting of votes within their territorial jurisdiction. In this respect, they were empowered to handle any problem arising from the organisation, conduct and counting of votes. They were expected to draw up an election return report of all the polling operations.

All in all, these commissions accomplished their missions reasonably well, despite the absence of the representatives of several candidates or political parties and the shortcomings of certain chairpersons.

Similarly, errors in calculation were observed on some result sheets, and rectified by the competent higher commissions.

With regard to divisional supervisory commissions, each of which was chaired by the president of the competent high court and made up, in addition to the other representatives, of a representative of each candidate, they carried out the verification and centralisation of results at the divisional level, after ensuring the proper conduct of preparatory activities for the election.

Well ahead of the poll, these commissions ordered certain rectifications relating to voters' registers and voters' cards.

The composition of these commissions was determined by a series of resolutions taken by the Electoral Board on 9 September 2011. The list of these resolutions is found in the table provided under Annex XVIII.

The absence of a majority of representatives of candidates was also noted at this level, as is shown in the table provided under Annex XIX.

The Divisional Supervisory Commissions forwarded their reports to the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes.

For its part, the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes, whose composition was determined by Resolution No. 051/ELECAM/CE of 5 October 2011 of the Electoral Board, accomplished its task in the library of the Supreme Court from 13 to 17 October 2011.

Taking over from the divisional supervisory commissions, the Commission got down to the task of verifying and centralising divisional results as well as the final counting of votes on the basis of vote count reports and supporting documents forwarded by the divisional supervisory commissions. It could redress clerical errors made during the vote counting without however cancelling the corresponding reports.

The absence of representatives of three (3) candidates was also observed at this level, notably those of MUNA Bernard ACHUO of AFP, DZONGANG Albert of LA DY-NAMIQUE and WALLA Edith KAHBANG of CPP, in spite of the formal designation of the representatives of the latter in the aforementioned Resolution.

On examination of the return reports, the divisional supervisory commissions made the following findings:

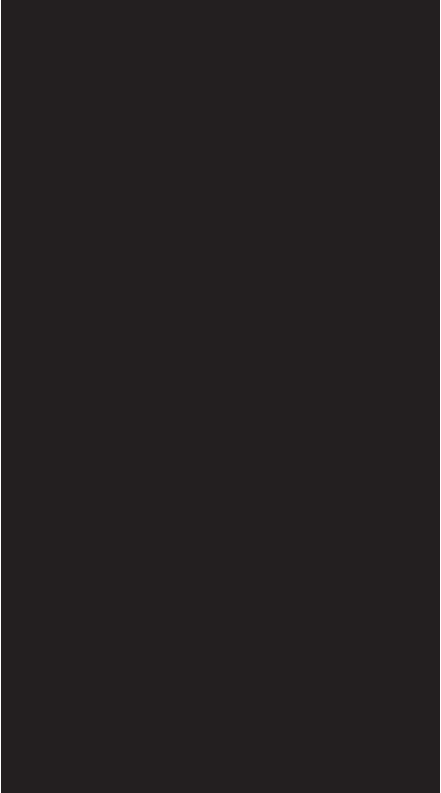

- In the Mayo-Banyo Division, the absence of an election data summary from this constituency (registered voters, actual voters, valid votes....) and the non-exploitable nature of the report from Bankim Sub-Division compelled the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes to conduct a thorough review of reports from all the 77 polling stations within the said Sub-Division in view of reconstituting the results of this Division.

- In the Meme Division where identical poor standards were observed, notably the absence of a summary report of data from Konye Sub-Division, the commission earlier invited the chairperson of the Divisional Supervisory Commission concerned to personally make up for this shortcoming, thereby enabling it to reconstitute results of the said Division.

It should however be indicated that some problems also arose from the examination of election return reports coming from polling stations in the Diaspora.

CHAPTER II:

COUNTING, VERIFICATION AND CENTRALISATION OF RESULTS OUTSIDE THE COUNTRY

Although the provisions of the electoral law governing the conduct of the October 9, 2011 presidential election across the national territory provide for the verification of result sheets received from polling stations and consolidation of the results thus obtained, by Divisional Supervisory Commissions, before their transmission to the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes, the same does not apply to results obtained from polling stations that hosted voting by Cameroonian citizens settled or residing abroad.

In fact, Decree No. 2011/137 of 8 August 2011 to lay down conditions for Implementing Law No. 2011/013 of 13 July 2011 relating to voting by Cameroonian citizens settled or residing abroad does not provide for any structure, outside the country, competent to carry out the necessary verification and consolidation such as accomplished within the country by the Divisional Supervisory Commissions.

Accordingly, election return reports from the Diaspora were directly addressed to the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes in view of the aforementioned operations, as prescribed by Article 25 (3) of the said Decree.

For this reason, upon examination of the return reports from the Bangui local polling commission in the Central African Republic, it was discovered that the said commission had authorised five (5) Cameroonians, duly registered on voters' registers within the national territory, to vote in Bangui, considering that they were on official mission out of Cameroon on the polling day.

Since this matter did not fall under the jurisdiction of the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes, it was forwarded to the Constitutional Council for examination.

These are the circumstances under which, accompanied by a report on operations carried out by the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes, the global results of the October 9, 2011 presidential election were transmitted to the Supreme Court in a ceremony organized in the library of the said institution on 18 October 2011, thereby making way for the handling of disputes relating to the conduct of the election.

CHAPTER III:

MANAGEMENT OF POST-ELECTION DISPUTES

After dwelling on pre-election disputes, relating to voters' registers or candidacies, in the first part of this report, focus now turns to petitions for annulment, subsequent to the conduct of the election.

Twenty (20) petitions on electoral litigation were listed for hearing on Wednesday, 19 October 2011 by the Supreme Court sitting in lieu of the Constitutional Council. Petitions brought against ELECAM or the State of Cameroon or even against certain candidates made various allegations and came from diverse origins, notably:

- a petition alleging the violation of the rights of persons with disabilities and election malpractices (the NGO, CAPHAM, Makak);
- a petition to establish ELECAM's incompetent (candidate Bernard ACHUO MUNA of AFP);
- a petition demanding the disqualification of Paul BIYA (candidate TABI OWONO Joachim of AMEC);
- petitions for the total cancellation of the election (candidates Jean Jacques EKINDI of MP, ADAMOU NDAM NJOYA of CDU, Bernard ACHUO MUNA of AFP, Anicet EKANE of MANIDEM, WALLA KAHBANG Edith of CPP and MOMO Jean de Dieu of PADDEC);
- petitions for the partial cancellation of election results (candidates Albert DZONGANG of la Dynamique in a particular constituency and NI John FRU NDI of SDF in 7 constituencies).

While opening the hearing, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court specified the legal bases for the resolution of the said petitions, notably the provisions of Section 94 of Law No. 92/010 of 17 September 1992 and its subsequent amendments as well as the conditions and means of proving the alleged facts.

The twenty or more written defences presented by the Directorate General of Elections requested the Supreme Court to rule most of the petitions as inadmissible.

Effectively, the arguments put forward by these written defences were substantiated by law. ELECAM took advantage of the non-respect of legal provisions by a majority of the petitioners who, poorly prepared and caught short by the deadlines, attempted to console themselves by filing the petitions.

What is more, given its active presence on the field all through the electoral process, the election management institution, sitting in all electoral commissions, which the representatives of political parties had taken pleasure in deserting, ensured that the Supreme Court would at no time be tricked by the unjustified allegations made by the petitioners.

Moreover, the fact that the said written defences pertinently and painstakingly referred to judicial precedence with respect to settlement of disputes relating to presidential elections by the Constitutional Council, contributed to the rejection of claims lodged by some petitioners.

Finally, arguments raised against the petitions for the partial or total cancellation of the 9 October 2011 election proved all the more plausible as they were sustained by authentic polling return reports against which the evidence of the petitioners was found to be frivolous and limping.

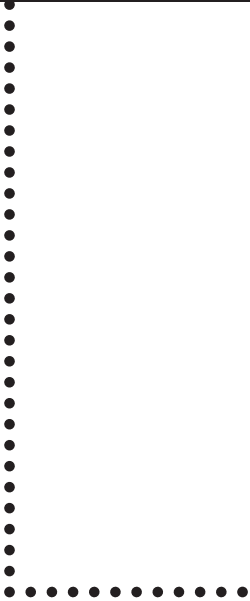

In the end, even petitions admitted by the Supreme Court failed to prevail, for lack of proof.

The ultimate resolution of all electoral disputes paved the way for the electoral process to reach its logical conclusion with the proclamation of results.

CHAPTER IV:

PART IV

FINANCING THE ELECTION

In view of the organisation of the 9 October 2011 presidential election, a budget of about CFA 21 000 million francs was prepared and entirely as well as exclusively funded by resources put up by the State of Cameroon through the Ministry of Finance, which disbursed the funds in instalments.

This sum was essentially used for the following major expenditure items:

- procurement and provision of ELECAM branches with means of transportation and other relevant equipment, notably:
 - four-wheel drive vehicles;
 - all road worthy motorbikes;
 - generators;
 - computers;
 - printers;
 - servers.
- procurement of various inputs and consumables necessary to the production of the following election documents:
 - ballot papers and campaign ballots;
 - election return forms;
 - counting sheets;
 - large and small-sized envelopes;
 - voters' registers;
 - voters' cards;
 - packaging cartons.
- procurement of polling station materials including:
 - calculators;
 - indelible ink;
 - lamps;
 - identification badges;
 - polling booths;
 - fabrics for polling booths.
- payment of printing charges for the aforementioned election documents to the National Printing Press and SOPECAM;
- payment of transportation expenses for election materials and documents outside the country as well as from Yaounde to the different regions of the country, and then within the said regions, towards polling stations;
- assumption of expenses relating to the following related and complementary activities:
 - information and sensitisation of citizens on the electoral process;
 - consideration of gender and people with disabilities;
 - organisation of training workshops for members of local polling commissions;
 - functioning of joint electoral commissions;
 - various bonuses;
 - elaboration and printing of the general report on the conduct of the October 9, 2011 presidential election.

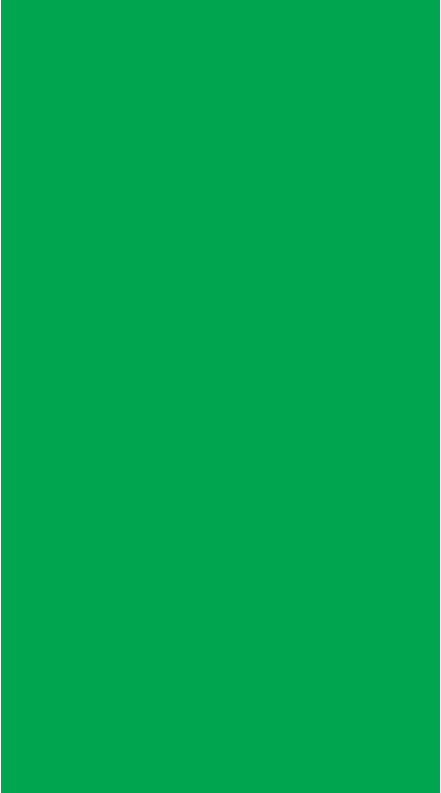

Subsequent to recollections of the October, 9 2011 presidential election, it is worth mentioning some of the difficulties encountered in the process and formulating related recommendations for the future.

PART V

DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Thrust onto the arena of the material organisation of an election for the first time, and more so, against a backdrop of bitter reproaches made by Cameroo-nians against the country's election history, the Directorate General of Elections did not for one moment expect the task to be easy.

CHAPTER I:

DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED

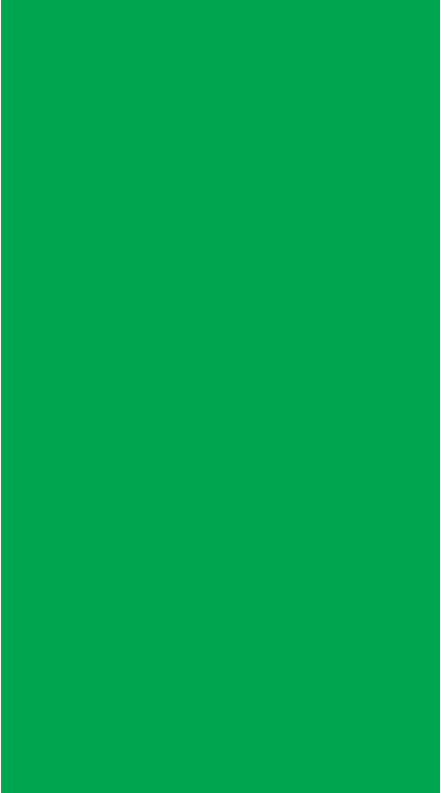

The organisation, management and supervision of the 2011 presidential election drew attention to certain structural or contextual shortcomings that often undermined the process.

It is noteworthy to mention, among others:

- the setting up of ELECAM branches to rhyme with existing administrative units poses serious challenges to those council branches with more than 100 (one hundred) polling stations under their charge;
- the closing of polling stations at 6 p.m., which engenders the risk of insecurity, notably inside polling stations deprived of light and exacerbation of difficulties relating to the preservation of non-expendable election material after the poll;
- the non-existence of electoral culture among a good number of voters reflected by glaring errors in the polling procedure, causing the self-cancellation of votes cast in this instance;
- the low participation of political parties in building civic consciousness that should spur every registered voter to single-handedly and effectively withdraw his/her voter's card and to exercise his/her right to vote at the proper time, a shortcoming partially highlighted by the embarrassing proportion of voter cards awaiting withdrawal and high rate of abstention;
- the disbursement in piecemeal and usually below par of the operating budget of ELECAM, which does not grant the institution actual time to recruit enough staff for easy accomplishment of its election missions;
- the non-inclusion by MINATD, in its transfer of election material to ELECAM, of both the communication network enabling the connection of the central roll (national) to regional rolls and ELECTOR, the software previously used in managing the electoral roll, thereby compelling ELECAM to put in place its own network and engendering the delay observed in the initial phase of computerisation of the said roll;
- the timorous participation, or even non-participation, of certain political parties, though stakeholders, in their own right, of the process, in joint electoral commissions (joint revision commissions, divisional supervisory commissions, local polling commissions), which prevented the optimal accomplishment of this mandatory participatory facet;
- the disconcerting ease with which citizens bereft of experience or significant political backing are free to stand as candidate in the presidential election in Cameroon, and in so doing, needlessly blow up the number of candidates and add to the work pressure within the election outfit as well as heavy expenses for the State;
- the rather inaccurate nature of the election data contained in the electoral roll inherited from the Ministry of Territorial Administration and Decentralisation whose use, used as a basis for the revision of registers, led to some shortcomings in the form of multiple entries on voters' registers;
- the fairly short deadlines prescribed by the law relating to the schedule of the various sequences of the preparatory phase, notably the production and publication of voters' rolls as well as the printing and distribution of voters' cards, which prevented the Institution from attaining the required perfection in these domains.

All these difficulties deserve solutions to allow for a more effective organisation of upcoming elections; thus, the subsequent recommendations.

CHAPTER II:

RECOMMENDATIONS

By way of solutions to the aforementioned difficulties, it would be worthwhile to take appropriate measures.

Thus:

- With respect to the inability of council branches, in their current mode of functioning, to effectively manage more than one hundred polling stations, it would be suitable to provide ELECAM with substantial financial resources enabling the institution to recruit enough personnel for the burdened council branches.
- As concerns the issuing by ELECAM of more than one voter's cards to a single registered voter, it is necessary to facilitate the allocation of means essential to replace the existing registration card with a new one, while ensuring greater participation of all stakeholders of the electoral process in the their distribution.
- Relating to the closing of polling stations at 6 p.m., which is a source of insecurity, inconveniences inherent to lack of light and difficulties in preserving non-expendable election materials, there is need to advocate for an adjustment in the decree convening voters to the poll in favour of a much earlier closing time for the said polling stations, thereby allowing enough time and daylight for fine-tuning the remaining operations.
- In terms of the errors committed by certain voters in the course of voting leading to unintentional cancellation of their vote, a combined action is necessary on the part of State, civil society organisations, political parties and the election institution to make citizens aware of existing norms in the voting domain, thereby curbing the incidence of such errors to the barest minimum.
- In connection to the widespread passive attitude demonstrated by registered voters when it comes to withdrawing their voter's card or exercising their voting right, it is of the essence for all stakeholders of the electoral process to strive, each in its area of competence, to urge the voter to personally endeavour to exercise his/her right to vote.
- Regarding the inadequate workforce suffered by ELECAM during an election period, it is necessary to facilitate the allocation of financial resources expected to support the endowment of this body with additional staff.
- As for disaffection for the different electoral commissions by political parties, it would be appropriate to find ways and means of convincing the latter to develop greater interest in their responsibilities.
- On the fairly inaccurate nature of the election data contained in the electoral roll inherited from MINATD, a short-term solution would consist in adjusting the deadlines in the electoral law to enable an optimal clean up of the said roll.
- In relation to the disconcerting ease with which politicians without any proven fame or experience may stand for the presidential election, thereby adding to the workload of the election outfit as well as incurring ill-timed expenditure from the State, it would be judicious to amend the legal framework so as to make running for president more constraining.

- Concerning the fairly short deadlines allowed for scheduling the different sequences of the aforementioned preparatory phase, an amendment of the pertinent provisions, extending the deadlines concerned, would grant as much time as necessary for the refinement of the said operations.

Besides, it would be reasonable to bring the voting age down to 18 years, thus matching it with the age of criminal responsibility. This should allow youths aged between 18 and 20, who until now have been excluded from the electoral process, to take an active part in choosing the leaders of their country as their political awareness increases.

Finally, it would be advisable to involve ELECAM whilst convening the electorate to the polls or to take into account the longest time limit prescribed by the electoral law rather than the shortest, thus granting ELECAM enough time to effectively and successfully accomplish all preliminary activities to the conduct of polls.

Before concluding, it is permissible to remark that the consideration of the suggestions above would constitute a giant step towards improving the Cameroonian electoral process, a constant quest of Elections Cameroon.

CONCLUSION

All things being equal, the Directorate General of Elections has lived up to the challenge of organising, managing and supervising all the electoral operations of the October 9, 2011 presidential election on time despite certain structural and contextual shortcomings observed and its youthfulness as an election management institution.

Nonetheless, the credit for this achievement goes, first and foremost, to the Cameroonian electorate, for heeding the call of ELECAM to take an active part in the election, at a time when calls for boycott were resounding and when the reputation of the election management institution was put to question.

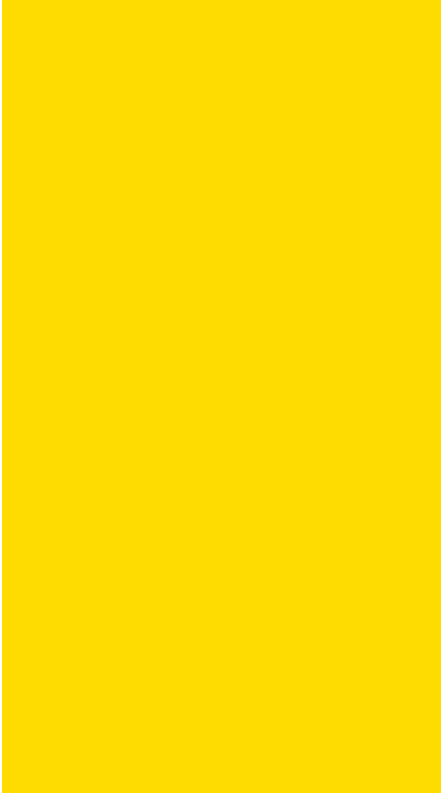

More so, this electorate showed proof of maturity on Election Day by exercising its civic duty of voting with calm, commitment and discipline. Incidentally, even calls for uprisings, issued by certain political leaders prior to the proclamation of the results, failed to triumph over its civic responsibility.

It is essential, as a result, to consolidate this spirit of patriotism through legal, institutional or other forms of adjustments and to refine the management of the electoral process in Cameroon. The corrective innovations introduced by ELECAM, ever since taking over election management, can only be used as a springboard.

An improvement of the Cameroonian electoral process cannot do without the conscious and constructive participation of all its stakeholders, notably that of political parties whose involvement is currently neglected, if its objective has to be met.

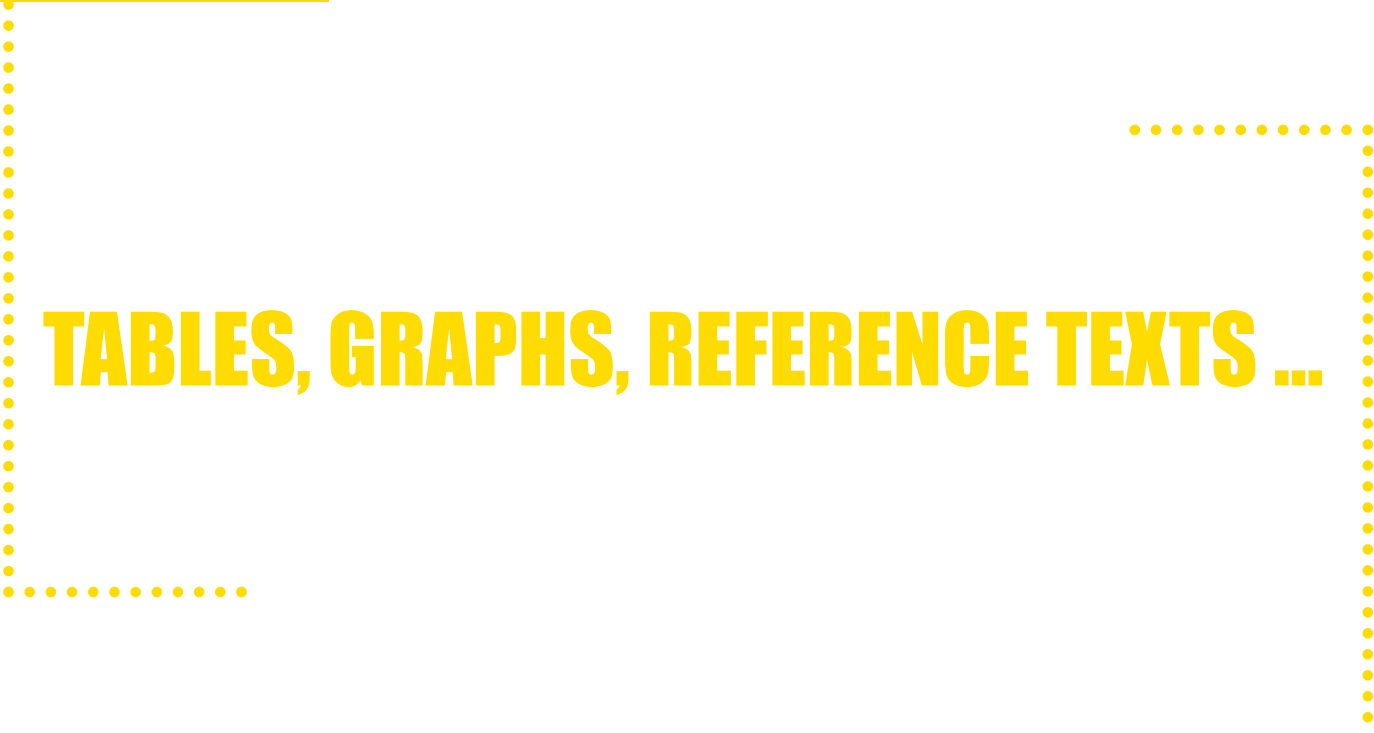

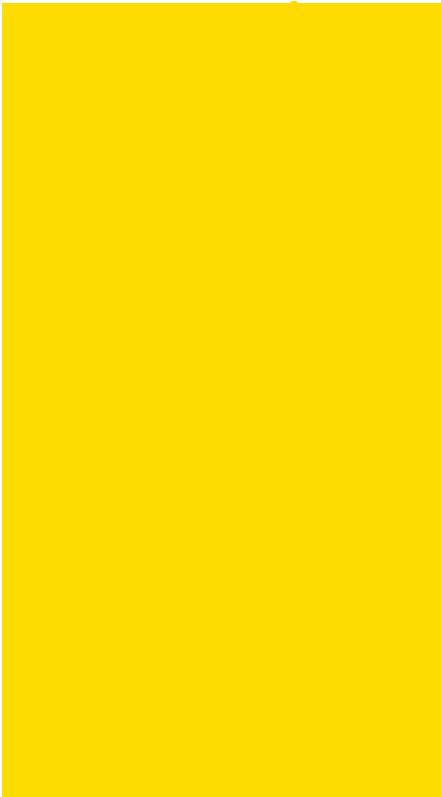

It would thus be necessary to encourage these parties to fully play their respective roles in view of the attainment of the democratic ideal.

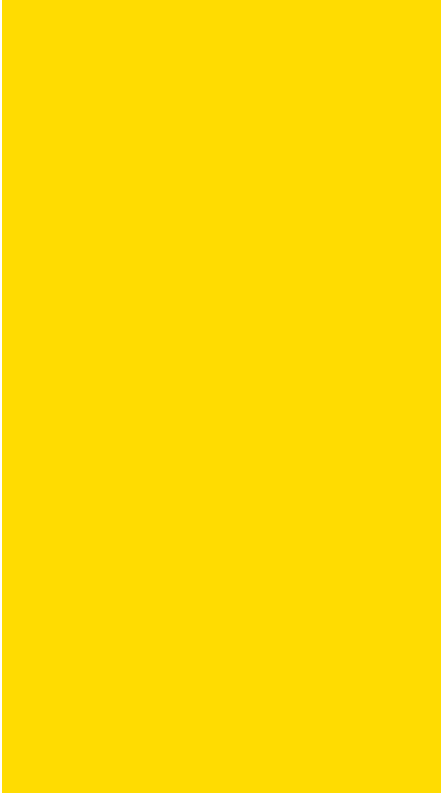

That seems to be the way forward for refining the Cameroonian electoral system, whose transparency, sincerity and credibility remains the guiding principles.
